

SW398T Pedagogy in Social Work | Fall 2023

- Instructor: Diana DiNitto, Ph.D., ACSW, LCSW, AADC (she, her)
- Course Unique Number: 62170
- Course Canvas site: <https://utexas.instructure.com/courses/1375645>
- Meeting Time: Thursday 2:30PM - 5:30PM
- Meeting Place: SSW 2.122

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM THE COURSE INSTRUCTOR: I look forward to getting to know each of you and to a vibrant semester. Our course has been designated to meet face-to-face. Of course, please feel free to wear a mask and social distance in class. I will also provide a Zoom link for times when you should not or are unable to attend in person. As social workers, we know the need for flexibility, and we can work together to modify approaches to the course if needed during the semester. Please let me know if you have questions or concerns now and as the semester progresses.*

Below are buttons/links with pictures to get to each section of the syllabus quickly. You can also scroll to get to each section.

I. Course Description (official course description adopted by the Steve Hicks School)

This is a required course for all doctoral students in the Steve Hicks School of Social Work. The course focuses on social work curriculum policy and curriculum issues, course development and content, teaching techniques, and classroom management. The course emphasizes skill development as well as conceptual content and theory.

II. Course Objectives (course objectives adopted by the Steve Hicks School)

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

1. Critique general philosophies of higher education and conceptualize a beginning personal philosophy of teaching and education at the college level;
2. Demonstrate an understanding of the Council on Social Work Education's Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards statement by discussing its implications for a social work curriculum;
3. Demonstrate an understanding of how social work curriculum components can be integrated to prepare students for social work practice;
4. Review and design class materials, examination questions, and grading schemes for use in beginning social work courses that incorporate levels of learning (knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, synthesis, and evaluation) as well as skills and values;
5. Identify and assess approaches to integrating values, diversity, and research content into social work courses;
6. Demonstrate an understanding of the student/teacher relationship in a social work program;
7. Identify and assess teaching methods that facilitate an open, creative atmosphere that promotes learning (e.g., lively discussions, active participation, group participation);
8. Identify common problems that arise in social work classes and assess alternatives for handling them.

III. Teaching Methods

As a course in the pedagogy/andragogy of social work, we will consider various theories, perspectives, approaches, and tools for teaching and learning, applying the lenses of inclusion, diversity, and social justice throughout the term. The course is intended to provide opportunities for you to think about the type of teacher you want to be and to give you opportunities to gain teaching experience. We will discuss learning and teaching in face-to-face environments and online in synchronous and asynchronous environments. Given the emphasis on learning how to teach and learn in this course, a variety of active teaching/learning methods will be used including interactive lectures, discussion, exercises, guest speakers, student presentations, practice teaching, and participation in campus-wide teacher preparation activities.

IV. Required Reading

Selecting required readings for courses is an important process and often takes considerable time and thought. We will read all or some of the material in the books listed below. Each book is available for purchase or can be accessed electronically at no cost through the UT Libraries. These and other readings for each week are listed in section VIII of this syllabus (Course Calendar) and in the Modules section of our course Canvas website.

Adams, M., Bell, L. A., Goodman, D. J., & Shlasko, D. (Eds.). (2023). Teaching for diversity and social justice (4th ed.). New York: Routledge (available for purchase) or Adams, M., Bell, L. E., & Griffin, P. (Eds.). (2007). Teaching for diversity and social justice (2nd ed.). New York: Routledge (available electronically at the UT Libraries website).

Davidson, C. N., & Katopodis, C. (2022). The new college classroom. Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press.

Lovett, M. C., Bridges, M. W., DiPietro, M., Ambrose, S. A., & Norman, M. K. (2023). How learning works: 8 research-based principles for smart teaching (2nd ed.) San Francisco: Jossey-Bass.

Rendón, L. I. (2023). Sentipensante (sensing/thinking) pedagogy: Educating for wholeness, social justice and liberation (2nd ed). Sterling, VA: Stylus.

The following texts are recommended:

Ahad-Legardy, B., & Poon, O. A. (Eds.). (2018). Difficult subjects: Insights and strategies for teaching about race, sexuality, and gender. Sterling, VA: Stylus. Available electronically at the UT Libraries.

Svinicki, M., & McKeachie, W. J. (2014). McKeachie's teaching tips: Strategies, research, and theory for college and university teachers (14th ed.). Belmont, CA: Cengage.

V. Course Assignments and Student Evaluation

Each of the active learning assignments described below has been designed to maximize the application of course material to the practice of teaching and to your development as the teacher you wish to be. If other assignments might better meet your learning needs, feel free to meet with me to discuss possible alternatives.

Assignment due dates are noted in this section, in section VIII. Course Calendar, and in the Modules section of our Canvas website. We will discuss assignments in class. If you would like to discuss assignments further or need additional time to complete an assignment, please let me know.

A. Teaching Credentials

1. Required: Teaching Preparation Series (worth 20% of the final course grade): Earn the 3- or 7-session teaching preparation certificate from the UT Austin Center for Teaching and Learning (CTL [formerly the Faculty Innovation Center]). Information about sessions and the link to enroll are at Program Initiatives (scroll down the page for the link). We will discuss your experiences in these sessions throughout the semester. Submit a copy of your certificate (and reflection paper or qualifying teaching statement, if you wish) with your final coursework on November 30. If your certificate is not available by this date, please submit a list of the sessions you attended instead.
2. Optional: Inclusive Classrooms Leadership Certificate Seminar: Earning this 2-session credential provided through the UT Austin Division of Diversity and Community Engagement (Inclusive Classrooms) is optional because space may be limited. We will discuss information about participation in class. We will also discuss the experiences of those who participate in these sessions during the term. If you wish, you may include a copy of your certificate with your final coursework on November 30.

These assignments are intended to broaden your exposure to knowledge and the practice of teaching through interaction with faculty, staff, and students from across the UT Austin campus.

B. Teaching Experiences

1. Microteaching (worth 10% of the final course grade): Thinking about what you currently know about teaching and engaging learners, prepare a live in-class presentation of no more than 20 minutes or a video of 10-12 minutes that will teach the class to do something you love to do, do well, believe is important for us to know, or that would otherwise be of interest. The presentation can be related to your personal or professional interests. No later than Monday, September 4, provide the course instructor a brief description of your topic, whether you will present live in class or record your presentation for online viewing during class, and the teaching methods you plan to use (e.g., slide presentation, demonstration). If you record your presentation, you can use any platform you wish as long as you can easily access it for the class to view. We will participate in or view your presentation in class on September 14, Week 4 of our class. Each presentation will be followed by 5 to 10 minutes of discussion. During the discussion, note why you chose this topic, what it was like to prepare the material, and how you would evaluate your effort. Classmates and the pedagogy course instructor will also have an opportunity to provide feedback.

This assignment is intended to help you begin to apply concepts learned in class about teaching, to observe yourself in the act of teaching by reviewing your video if prerecorded or making a video of yourself in class to view later if you wish, and to receive some initial feedback about your teaching.

2. Teaching in a social work course or courses (worth 40% of the final course grade): The course instructor will attempt to pair each class member with an experienced instructor or instructors teaching required undergraduate social work (or similar) courses at UT or other social work programs. Class members will consult with the instructor(s) of that course(s) to develop and teach two class sessions of at least 75-minutes each or the equivalent. You may teach in person or online (synchronously or asynchronously) or perhaps get an opportunity to use more than one approach depending on the course(s) selected. Regardless of the approach used, each teaching experience/session should be carefully constructed and allow you to utilize at least two different teaching/learning methods to provide course content, including a brief lecture-type presentation that should preferably cover a core concept or aspect of social work. Sessions may also include a guided class discussion, demonstration of a practice technique, case scenario, a collaborative learning group, or other method(s). To give you sufficient time to learn more about teaching and to fully prepare for the experience, try to arrange to teach these classes no sooner than mid-October. If possible, record a portion of your teaching that DOES NOT include capturing students' images or voices (if you develop an asynchronous presentation, you will likely have such a recording available to share with our class). If your teaching experience does not permit making such a recording, we will discuss alternatives, such as making a simulated brief recording of what you presented in the class.

After discussing the topic(s) you will cover with the instructor of the course(s) in which you will be teaching and getting approval, do the following:

- a. No later than September 28, send to the pedagogy course instructor a brief description (approximately 150 words or more if you like) of each class session you will teach, and be prepared to discuss the topic(s) with her for clarification and/or consultation if needed.
- b. For each class you will teach, develop a detailed lesson plan and outline of the class content of approximately 2 to 3 pages and include the accompanying materials (e.g., slides, handouts) you will use. A template for developing the lesson plan will be provided, and students who previously took the course are often willing to share their materials as examples. Provide your materials to the pedagogy course instructor and instructor(s) of the course(s) in which you will be teaching for review, feedback, and any necessary revisions no later than two weeks before you will teach the class session (or another date agreed on with the instructor[s]). Include the following:
 - Specific learning objectives to be achieved using Bloom's revised taxonomy (we will discuss this taxonomy in Week 2 of the semester class). At least one objective should focus specifically on diversity, inclusion, and/or social justice. For each objective, be sure to note both the knowledge dimension and the cognitive process dimension of Bloom's revised taxonomy and include one or more examples from your class sessions. The number of learning objectives for a single class session is usually no more than a few.
 - Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards (EPAS) competencies and behaviors you will address, including examples of those covered in each of your class sessions (we will discuss EPAS in Week 3 of the semester).
 - Materials developed for the sessions (e.g., lecture notes, slide presentation, handout, discussion guide/questions, case study). List them on your lesson plan and attach copies with your work.
 - A list of books, articles, and/or other materials used as a basis for the class sessions.
 - A rationale of one to two paragraphs supported by teaching and learning literature for your choices of teaching/learning approaches, materials you prepared, and readings you utilized.
 - An agenda and timetable for each class session (indicate how much time you will allot to each activity).
 - Method(s) you will use to evaluate your teaching. Consider using a different method to evaluate each class session you teach. These methods may be a short quiz to test students' knowledge of the material you delivered, a "one-minute paper" that students write describing what they learned, a short Likert scale form that students can use to evaluate the session (questions might include: How would you rate the presenter's teaching style? How clear was the material?, etc. You can also utilize open-ended questions such as: What was the most important thing you learned from the class? How could the presenter improve the session? You may utilize an existing assessment form, modify an existing form, or devise the form yourself). At least one of these assessment methods should provide students and the instructor(s) in whose course(s) you are teaching an opportunity to provide direct feedback on your teaching. Be

- sure to have the students and the course instructor evaluate the objective you developed on diversity, inclusion, and/or social justice. Try to build the evaluation directly into your teaching time since it will be more difficult to obtain feedback from students if they are asked to do it after the class session. Include these evaluations or a summary of them with your reflection paper described in point d below.
- c. After preparing materials and teaching, make notes about your experience (e.g., strengths you saw in your teaching, challenges you experienced) including anything you would modify if you taught this material again.
 - d. In Week 13 of the semester, we will discuss your teaching experiences. Show the class approximately 5 minutes of your recorded session and by December 4, submit a paper of approximately two pages single-spaced that reflects on what you learned including the strengths you felt you exhibited as a teacher, areas on which you would like to improve, points that surprised you about your teaching experience, or other aspects of the experience you would like to share. You may also reflect on your overall learning about teaching during the semester. Be prepared to discuss your reflection with the class.

You may already have TA and/or teaching experience, but as part of your pedagogy course experience, you may also wish to observe other sessions or aspects of the course(s) in which you will be teaching. If possible, you may also wish to work with the course instructor in other ways (e.g., assist with developing tests or case scenarios) or debrief class sessions. If you do additional work (e.g., develop test questions or case scenarios for other class sessions), you may wish to include it along with your two-page reflection paper due at the end of the semester, or you can describe these additional activities in the reflection paper (see point d above). You may also wish to place teaching materials you developed during the semester in a portfolio for use as you seek teaching positions.

This assignment is intended to give you real life experience in applying concepts learned through our class about teaching and learning, being purposeful about teaching, observing yourself teaching, receiving feedback about your teaching, and, finally, reflecting on these experiences. As John Dewey said: "We do not learn from experience...we learn from reflecting on experience."

C. Teaching Philosophy Statement (worth 10% of the final grade)

Write an initial statement of your philosophy of teaching social work in higher education (approximately 1 to 2 single-spaced pages) including information on how you will approach diversity, inclusion, and social justice in your teaching. We will discuss developing these statements in class, and examples of teaching philosophies are available at the course Canvas site. Also see the UT Center for Teaching and Learning's webpage on teaching philosophy statements (Teaching Statement). You may also wish to attend the CTL's sessions on developing teaching philosophy and diversity statements. If you have not had extensive prior higher education teaching experience, you can think of this assignment as a description of the way you expect to approach teaching. A draft of your statement is due on November 16, Week 13 of our class. Be prepared to discuss your statement in class. The instructor will review and comment on it and return it to you by November 24. You may revise if requested or if you wish and resubmit on November 30. You will also be asked to review and provide feedback on other class members' statements by November 30.

This assignment is intended to help you articulate an initial teaching philosophy and aid you in preparing for the job market since such statements are often required in pursuing faculty positions.

D. Class participation (worth 20% of the final grade)

This class requires substantial in-class participation, often involving advance preparation as noted in the instructions below for preparing for each week of class. These assignments are not graded per se, and given that this is a doctoral course, I assume that each class member will recognize the benefits of participating. Given the small number of students in our class, there will be ample opportunity to participate. Points are awarded for each week's participation. Also see the Appendix at the end of this syllabus for the self-report class attendance sheet.

Class participation is critical to the learning environment in social work. These class participation assignments are also intended to help you think more deeply about the application of the readings and other course materials to learning and teaching and to better prepare you to participate during class. They may also help you think about how you can encourage your own students to participate to enrich their class experiences and those of other students in the class.

Criteria for Evaluating Assignments 1-4. Assignments will be evaluated on the following grading criteria as appropriate to the specific assignment with equal weight (20 points) given to each of the five criteria:

1. Is the assignment complete, i.e., have all instructions for the assignment been followed?
2. Is the assignment thorough, clearly presented, logically organized, and carefully proofread (i.e., free from spelling, punctuation, and grammatical errors), and where applicable, are American Psychological Association (APA) guidelines followed, including non-biased language and references cited correctly?
3. Does the work reflect a solid understanding of the profession of social work and social work education, including the profession's commitment to diversity, inclusion, and social justice?
4. Is the work theoretically grounded, and does it reflect a clear understanding of adult learning/teaching theory and practice?
5. Is there evidence of originality and creativity?

Grades for each assignment and the final course grade will be assigned as follows:

94 & above=A	Work is exceptional on all criteria	74.0-76.999=C	Work meets most criteria
90.0-93.999=A-	Work is exceptional on most criteria	70.0-73.999=C-	Work meets some criteria
87.0-89.999=B+	Work is good/very good on all criteria	67.0-69.999=D+	Improvement needed on some criteria
84.0-86.999=B	Work is good/very good on most criteria	64.0-66.999=D	Improvement needed on many criteria
80.0-83.999=B-	Work is good/very good on some criteria	60.0-63.999=D-	Improvement needed on most criteria
77.0-79.999=C+	Work meets all criteria	Below 60.0=F	Improvement needed on all criteria

VI. University Policies

COVID-19 RELATED INFORMATION. The University's policies and practices related to the pandemic may be accessed at: <https://protect.utexas.edu/>

THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS HONOR CODE. The core values of The University of Texas at Austin are learning, discovery, freedom, leadership, individual opportunity, and responsibility. Each member of the university is expected to uphold these values through integrity, honesty, trust, fairness, and respect toward peers and community.

ACCESSIBLE/COMPLIANT STATEMENT. If you are a student with a disability, or think you may have a disability, and need accommodations please contact Disability and Access (D&A). You may refer to D&A's website for contact and more information: <http://diversity.utexas.edu/disability/>. If you are already registered with D&A, please touch base with your instructor to discuss your Accommodation Letter as early as possible in the semester so your approved accommodations can be implemented.

PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT AND CIVILITY IN THE CLASSROOM. The professor expects students to act as professionals in class. This means students should arrive on time for class, be prepared to participate in the class discussion, and show respect for one another's opinions. A course brings together a group of diverse individuals with various backgrounds. Students are influenced and shaped by such factors as race, ethnicity, gender, sex, physical abilities, religious and political beliefs, national origins, and sexual orientations, among others. We expect to learn from each other in an atmosphere of positive engagement and mutual respect. This atmosphere includes working intentionally to recognize and dismantle racism, sexism, heterosexism, and ableism in the classroom. Social Work also deals with complex and controversial issues. These issues may be challenging and uncomfortable, and it would be impossible to offer a substantive classroom experience that did not include potentially difficult conversations relating to challenging issues. In this environment, we will be exposed to diverse ideas and opinions, and sometimes we will not agree with the ideas expressed by others. Nevertheless, the professor requires that students engage one another with civility, respect, and professionalism.

UNANTICIPATED DISTRESS. Students may experience unexpected and/or distressing reactions to course readings, videos, conversations, and assignments. If so, students are encouraged to inform the professor. The professor can be responsive and supportive regarding students' participation in course assignments and activities, but students are responsible for communicating clearly what kind of support is desired. If counseling is needed, students may contact a service provider of their choosing, including the UT Counseling Center at 512-471-3515 or online at <https://cmhc.utexas.edu/>.

POLICY ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION. Public social networks are not private. Even when open only to approved or invited members, users cannot be certain that privacy will exist among the general membership of sites. If social work students choose to participate in such forums, please assume that anything posted can be seen, read, and critiqued. What is said, posted, linked to, commented on, uploaded, subscribed to, etc., can be accessed and archived, posing potential harm to professional reputations and prospective careers.

Social work students who use social media (e.g., Facebook, Twitter, Instagram) and other forms of electronic communication (e.g., blogs) must be mindful of how their communication may be perceived by clients, colleagues, faculty, and others. Social work students are expected to make every effort to minimize material which could be considered inappropriate for a professional social worker in training. Because of this, social work students are advised to manage security settings at their most private levels and avoid posting information/photos or using any language that could jeopardize their professional image.

Students are asked to consider the amount of personal information posted on these sites and are obliged to block any client access to involvement in the students' social networks. Client material should not be referred to in any form of electronic media, including any information that might lead to the identification of a client or compromise client confidentiality in any way. Additionally, students must critically evaluate any material that is posted regarding community agencies and professional relationships, as certain material could violate the standards set by the School of Social Work, the Texas Code of Conduct for Social Workers, and/or the NASW Code of Ethics.

Social work students should consider that they will be representing professional social work practice as well as The University of Texas at Austin School of Social Work program while in the classroom, the university community, and the broader area communities.

POLICY ON ACADEMIC INTEGRITY. Students who violate University rules on academic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary penalties, including the possibility of failure in the course and / or dismissal from the University. Since such dishonesty harms the individual, all students, and the integrity of the University, policies on academic dishonesty will be strictly enforced. For further information, please visit the Student Conduct and Academic Integrity website at: <http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/conduct>.

USE OF COURSE MATERIALS. The materials used in this course, including, but not limited to exams, quizzes, and homework assignments, are copyright protected works. Any unauthorized duplication of the course materials is a violation of federal law and may result in disciplinary action being taken against the student. Additionally, the sharing of course materials without the specific, express approval of the professor may be a violation of the University's Student Honor Code and an act of academic dishonesty, which could result in further disciplinary action. This sharing includes, among other things, uploading class materials to websites for the purpose of distributing those materials to other current or future students.

CLASSROOM CONFIDENTIALITY. Information shared in class about agencies, clients, and personal matters is considered confidential per the NASW Code of Ethics on educational supervision and is protected by regulations of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) as well. As such, sharing this information with individuals outside of the educational context is not permitted. Violations of confidentiality could result in actions taken according to the policies and procedure for review of academic performance located in sections 3.0, 3.1, and 3.2 of the Standards for Social Work Education.

UNIVERSITY ELECTRONIC MAIL STUDENT NOTIFICATION. Electronic mail (email), like postal mail, is a mechanism for official University communication to students. The University will exercise the right to send email communications to all students, and the University will expect that email communications will be received and read in a timely manner. Students can find UT Austin's policies and instructions for updating their e-mail address at <https://it.utexas.edu/policies/university-electronic-mail-student-notification-policy>.

RELIGIOUS HOLY DAYS. A student who misses classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day should inform the instructor as far in advance of the absence as possible so that arrangements can be made to complete an assignment within a reasonable period after the absence. A reasonable accommodation does not include substantial modification to academic standards, or adjustments of requirements essential to any program of instruction. Students and instructors who have questions or concerns about academic accommodations for religious observance or religious beliefs may contact the Office for Inclusion and Equity. The University does not maintain a list of religious holy days.

TITLE IX DISCLOSURE. Beginning January 1, 2020, Texas Education Code, Section 51.252 (formerly known as Senate Bill 212) requires all employees of Texas universities, including faculty, to report to the Title IX Office any information regarding incidents of sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, or stalking that is disclosed to them. Texas law requires that all employees who witness or receive information about incidents of this type (including, but not limited to, written forms, applications, one-on-one conversations, class assignments, class discussions, or third-party reports) must report it to the Title IX Coordinator. Before talking with me, or with any faculty or staff member about a Title IX-related incident, please remember that I will be required to report this information.

Faculty, staff, graduate assistants, teaching assistants, and graduate research assistants are mandatory reporters under federal Title IX regulations and are required to report a wide range of behaviors we refer to as sexual misconduct, including the types of misconduct covered under Texas Education Code, Section 51.252. Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 is a federal civil rights law that prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex – including pregnancy and parental status – in educational programs and activities. The Title IX Office has developed supportive ways and compiled campus resources to support all impacted by a Title IX matter.

If you would like to speak with a case manager, who can provide support, resources, or academic accommodations, in the Title IX Office, please email: supportandresources@austin.utexas.edu. Case managers can also provide support, resources, and accommodations for pregnant, nursing, and parenting students.

For more information about reporting options and resources, please visit: <https://titleix.utexas.edu>, contact the Title IX Office via email at: titleix@austin.utexas.edu, or call 512-471-0419.

CAMPUS CARRY POLICY. The University's policy on campus carry may be found here: <https://campuscarry.utexas.edu>.

SAFETY. As part of professional social work education, students may have assignments that involve working in agency settings and/or the community. As such, these assignments may present some risks. Sound choices and caution may lower risks inherent to the profession. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of and adhere to policies and practices related to agency and/or community safety. Students should notify the professor regarding any safety concerns.

BEHAVIOR CONCERNS and COVID-19 ADVICE LINE (BCCAL). If students have concerns about their behavioral health, or if they are concerned about the behavioral health of someone else, students may use the Behavior Concerns and COVID-19 Advice Line to discuss by phone their concerns. This service is provided through a partnership between the Office of the Dean of Students, the Counseling and Mental Health Center (CMHC), the Employee Assistance Program (EAP), and The University of Texas Police Department (UTPD). Call 512-232-5050 or visit <https://safety.utexas.edu/behavior-concerns-advice-line>. The Behavior Concerns and COVID-19 Advice Line has been expanded to support The University of Texas at Austin community during the COVID-19 pandemic. By calling 512-232-5050 - Option 2 for COVID-19, students, faculty and staff can be assisted in English and Spanish with COVID-19 support.

EMERGENCY EVACUATION POLICY. Occupants of buildings on the UT Austin campus are required to evacuate and assemble outside when a fire alarm is activated or an announcement is made. Please be aware of the following policies regarding evacuation:

- Familiarize yourself with all exit doors in the classroom and the building. Remember that the nearest exit door may not be the one you used when entering the building.
- If you require assistance to evacuate, inform the professor in writing during the first week of class.
- In the event of an evacuation, follow the professor's instructions.
- Do not re-enter a building unless you are given instructions by the Austin Fire Department, the UT Austin Police Department, or the Fire Prevention Services office.

VII. Course Policies

Class comportment. Your full participation in class will help ensure that we have the most productive semester possible. Participation includes reading assigned materials prior to class, engaging in lively and respectful class discussions, participating in class exercises, and completing assignments promptly. During class, please turn off phone ringers and refrain from text messaging, reading e mail, and other non-class activities unless necessary. Our class is designated to be delivered face-to-face, but if we must return to online teaching/learning via Zoom or use Zoom for some class functions, to the extent possible, please leave your camera on (of course, you may need to turn it off briefly due to unexpected interruptions or to take care of personal needs) or if other circumstances arise such as situations in which you cannot attend class in person.

Professional conduct. As professionals, we recognize the need for observing codes of conduct regarding confidentiality, dress, language, and other matters and the importance of exercising good judgment in our class and while working with other instructors, classes/students, and organizations or other entities on course assignments.

Attendance. To make the most of our class time, it is important that we do our best to arrive on time and remain for the entire class period. Not doing so may be considered an absence. Ten points will be deducted from the final course grade for the first class absence not due to illness, an (unforeseen) emergency, or observance of a religious holiday, and an additional ten points will be deducted for the second such absence (attending weddings and family reunions or work conflicts are generally not cause for an excused absence; please plan in advance so that you can attend class). Generally, missing two or more classes will result in an F for the course or the need to withdraw from the course. The instructor will provide self-report attendance sheet that each student will submit with final course assignments at the end of the semester.

Extenuating/unforeseen circumstances and course modifications: If you encounter circumstances that will affect your class participation or completing course work on time, it may be necessary to discuss with the instructor whether alternative arrangements (e.g., additional time for completing the course) are possible. Should any modifications or changes need to be made to the course (e.g., calendar, assignments), students will be notified in class and/or by email. Please check your email frequently, and if you are absent from class, check on announcements made during your absence. To ensure that the course progresses as smoothly as possible, the instructor will check in regularly with the class during the semester so that needed modifications can be made. If we must make modifications during the semester, I know we will extend each other grace, maintain a sense of humor, and do our best to adapt.

Submitting assignments.

- Written assignments should generally be word-processed (typed) and usually in 12-point font; single- or double-spaced, depending on the assignment, and with reasonable margins, or presented in another format appropriate to the assignment (e.g., a slide presentation).
- You may submit most assignments by providing a hard copy, e-mailing them to me, or uploading them to our course Canvas site.
- Assignment due dates are noted in the course calendar. Timeliness is important in the professional world. Unless prior arrangements have been made with the instructor or in the case of illness or (unforeseen) emergency, assignments turned in after the due date may be considered late for that day. Five points will be deducted for each day an assignment is late (weekend days included).
- The current Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (APA) is the style manual to be used unless another referencing style is more appropriate for the assignment.
- Plagiarism is a form of scholastic dishonesty and faculty are expected to address it as such (also see the next item on this list and the UT policy on academic integrity at this website). To avoid plagiarism, appropriate referencing of citations (authors, titles, page numbers, etc.) is required. This includes giving due credit to others when indirect quotes (paraphrasing) and direct (verbatim) quotes are used. Short direct quotes (less than 40 words) must be placed in quotation marks. Long direct quotes (40 or more words) must be indented. Paraphrasing requires more than changing a word or two in a sentence. If you desire assistance in how to cite appropriately, let's meet so that we can discuss this before you begin submitting assignments as not giving due credit to others can result in a "0" for the assignment or an "F" for the course.

Scholastic Dishonesty. Scholastic dishonesty may result in a report to the Associate Dean for Doctoral Education, the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, and Dean of the Steve Hicks School of Social Work, the Dean of the Graduate School, and/or Student Judicial Services. Students may receive an "F" for the course and other sanctions in accordance with university policies, including dismissal from UT Austin.

VIII. Course Calendar

Note: The following information is provided to meet syllabus requirements. Please refer to the Modules section of our Canvas course site to prepare for each week of class. There you will find additional information including objectives and a schedule for each week's class session as well as additional resources such as pdfs and Word versions of some readings and handouts.

Week 1, August 24: Getting started (a good first class), decolonizing courses, and co-constructing guidelines for engaging students

To prepare for this class session:

1. Play the greeting from the course instructor at the course Canvas page under Announcements.
2. Review the syllabus available under Modules at the course Canvas page and note questions you have about the course (you may wish to have a copy of the syllabus handy during the first class).
3. Think about the best teacher(s) you ever had and why (we will discuss the qualities of "good" teachers and "good" students in class).
4. Watch the video "Looking Back on the History of Social Work Education" (3.42 minutes) or listen to a recording of the text of the video at the course Canvas site.
5. Read the following from the course texts:
 - a. Davidson & Katopodis: Introduction, Chapter 4 "Before the First Class", Chapter 5 "The First Class"
 - b. Rendón: Foreword, Acknowledgments, Introduction
 - c. Lovett et al., Appendix A "What Are Ground Rules and How Can We Use Them?"
6. Review Bradley Fyffe's teaching philosophy statement (Mr. Fyffe teaches younger students but his statement has relevance for our course.): Identify two principles of learning and/or teaching reflected in his statement, two points you especially liked about his statement, and any other comments you have about his statement. You can also read about Mr. Fyffe and view his teaching portfolio
7. Peruse Lang, J. M. (2019, January 4). How to teach a good first day of class. The Chronicle of Higher Education. See Week 1 module at the course Canvas site. (The Chronicle, which is available at the UT Libraries website, also offers other advice guides for faculty.)
8. Suggested reading: Hoffman, K. (2013, June). Social work education: An overview. In Franklin, C. G. (Ed.-in-Chief). Encyclopedia of Social Work, on-line edition. National Association of Social Workers Press and Oxford University Press. See Week 1 module at the course Canvas site. The Encyclopedia of Social Work is available at the UT Libraries website.

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. Begin thinking about the topic for your microteaching presentation.

Week 2, August 31: Philosophy of education, learning theory, evidence-based/informed teaching and learning, and a critical look at critical theories for teaching

This week, guest speaker Dr. Robert "Bob" Duke, Marlene and Morton Meyerson Centennial Professor and Head of Music and Human Learning at The University of Texas at Austin and co-host of the podcast Two Guys on Your Head, will help us consider how we can help students learn.

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following short pieces:
 - a. In Orey, M. (Ed.). (2010). Emerging perspectives on learning, teaching, and technology.
 - i. Chapter 3. Bloom's taxonomy by M. Forehand
 - ii. Chapter 4. Vygotsky's constructivism by C. Galloway

- b. Lynch, M. (2019, September 6). How to implement critical pedagogy in your classroom. The Advocate.
- c. Specia, A., & Osman, A. A. (2015). Education as a practice of freedom: Reflections on bell hooks. Journal of Education and Practice, 6(17), 195-199.
2. View the following tools to help in applying Bloom's taxonomy
 - a. Taxonomy as a wheel
 - b. Bloom's verbs and Bloom's stems (See Week 2 Module at the course Canvas site.)
3. Read the following from the Lovett et al. course text: Appendix G "What Are Learning Objectives and How Can we Use Them?"
4. Play these videos:
 - a. Paulo Friere's Critical Pedagogy: (4.34 minutes)
 - b. In bell hook's voice: bell hooks et Paulo Freire: Un dialogue radical (it's in English): (2.50 minutes)
 - c. Janet Finlay, Andragogy (Adult Learning) (8.27 minutes) You may also wish to review the infographic "Adult Learning Theory Andragogy by Malcolm Knowles" at ELEARNINGinfographics.co (click on "view full infographic")
 - d. "Evidence-based Teaching for Social Work Education" by Dr. Miki Tesh (13.28 minutes): Note two or more points you thought were especially important and why.
 - e. This is a long video but worth it: Critical Race Pedagogy in Social Work by Susan Nakaoka and Nicole Vazquez (1.5 hours):

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. Each class member will be assigned two chapters from the Lovett et al. class text to discuss in class next week.
 2. Submit topic and brief description of your microteaching presentation no later than Monday, September 4. If you are recording your microteaching assignment, you may use Panopto at our course Canvas site or another platform as long as you can easily show your recording in our classroom.
 3. Begin connecting with instructor(s) about teaching in their course(s).

Week 3, September 7: Philosophy of education, learning theory, and evidence-based teaching and learning

This week, Dr. Cynthia Franklin, Stiernberg/Spencer Family Professor in Mental Health, who served on the committee that developed the latest CSWE Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards, will speak with us.

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following from the Lovett et al. course text: "Introduction: Bridging Learning Research and Teaching Practice" (pp. 1-8), the two chapters on which you will report, "Conclusion: Applying the Eight Principles to Ourselves" (pp. 212-218), and any other chapters you wish to read. Be prepared to speak in class for a few minutes on the principles and key points of the chapters on which you will report and provide an illustration or two of these principles from your own learning experiences to the class.
2. Read the following from the Rendón course text: Chapter 1 "Prelude to a New Pedagogical Dreamfield."
3. Review the Council on Social Work Education's 2022 Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards \(EPAS\), focusing on the nine competencies. You can download the EPAS (and review related resources as time allows).
4. Read the following short pieces:
 - a. McLoed, S. (2017, October 24). Kolb's learning styles and experiential learning cycle.
 - b. Khazan, O. (2018, April 11). The myth of 'learning styles.' The Atlantic.
5. Optional (if you wish): Take the VARK \(visual*aural*read/write*kinesthetic\) questionnaire: click on green rectangle entitled "What is YOUR learning preference?").
6. Peruse resources at the website of the UT Austin Center for Teaching and Learning: <https://ctl.utexas.edu>.

Reminder of upcoming assignment due:

1. Next week, class members will make their microteaching presentations.

Week 4, September 14: Philosophy of education, learning theory, and evidence-based teaching and learning; universal course design; lecturing as a teaching technique; microteaching presentationsTo prepare for this class session:

1. Be prepared to make your microteaching presentation this week whether teaching live or showing your video. Also be prepared to comment on the process you used in developing your presentation, the principles of learning you applied, and thoughts about your final product.
2. Read the following from the course texts:
 - a. Rendón: Chapter 2: "Learning from Another's Story"
 - b. Adams et al., 4th ed.: Preface, Chapter 1 "Theoretical Foundations for Social Justice Education," Chapter 2 "Pedagogical Foundations for Social Justice Education" OR 2nd ed.: Preface, Chapter 1 "Theoretical Foundations for Social Justice Education," Chapter 2 "Pedagogical Frameworks for Social Justice Education," Chapter 3 "Conceptual Foundations for Social Justice Education"
3. Review the following universal design for learning (UDL) materials:
 - a. The National Center on Accessing the General Curriculum's checklist (see course Canvas site):
 - b. Visit CAST's Universal design for learning in higher education website:
 - i. Review the text on this landing page and the three short videos.
 - ii. Under the green, purple, and blue graphics, view the three variations of CAST's UDL guidelines.
 - c. Peruse Equity Review Tool: A Process Guide for Equity-centered Instructional Materials by Every Learner Everywhere, Achieving the Dream, and Intentional Futures:
 - d. Browse website of UT Austin Disability and Access, part of the Division of Diversity and Community Engagement

Look ahead to a class participation activity:

1. See the Caplan and Ford reading for Week 7, October 5, and allow yourself sufficient time to do this reading and post to the online discussion board as indicated in the instructions for preparing for that week's class.

Week 5, September 21: Philosophy of education, learning theory, and evidence-based teaching and learning; putting the pieces together; in class and on-line discussions as teaching techniquesTo prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following from the course texts:
 - a. Davidson and Katapodis: Chapter 2 "Structuring Active Learning," Chapter 6 "Activities for Any Day of the Term," Chapter 8 "Group Work Without the Groans," Chapter 9 "Research that Inspires Creativity"
 - b. Adams et al., 4th ed.: Chapter 3 "Design and Facilitation," Chapter 4 "Core Concepts for Teaching Social Justice Education" OR 2nd ed.: Chapter 4, "Designing Social Justice Education Courses," Chapter 5 "Facilitating Social Justice Education Courses"
2. Think back on materials on Bloom's taxonomy, EPAS, learning theory, ways of learning, critical pedagogies, and UDL in preparation for applying them in a class exercise we will do today.
3. Review the handout "SNAP Guided Class Discussion" available in the Modules section of the Canvas course site in preparation for our discussion about leading class discussions.
4. Ask two faculty members for examples of their favorite teaching techniques. Also note two examples of techniques you believe enhance your learning most. Be prepared to discuss these techniques in our class meeting on October 5.

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. By next week, September 28, submit a description of your teaching experience assignment including the course number(s) and title(s), name of course instructor(s), and a one paragraph description of each session you will be teaching. It is helpful to refer back to the syllabus periodically to review descriptions of course assignments, especially the teaching experience assignment, since it has several components.

Week 6, September 28: There is no formal class meeting this week. This time is devoted to (1) meeting with the instructor(s) in whose class(es) you will be teaching and planning for your teaching sessions and (2) earning a teaching certificate from the UT Austin Center for Teaching and Learning. I am available to discuss assignments and course material and engage in other discussions about teaching and learning with you or just to chat.

Though we are not meeting as a group, please do the following:

1. Read the following from the course texts:
 - a. Rendón: Chapter 3 “Refashioning the Dream,” Chapter 4 “Refashioning the Dream: The Experience of Employing an Integrative, Consonant Pedagogy Rooted in Social Justice”
 - b. Davidson and Katapodis: Introduction, Chapter 1 “Why Change Now,” Chapter 3 “Teaching is Mentoring”
2. Browse websites of:
 - a. Association of Baccalaureate Social Work Program Directors \(BPD\)
 - b. Chronicle of Higher Education: (access Chronicle at UT Austin Libraries)
 - c. Council on Social Work Education \(CSWE\)
 - d. Group for the Advancement of Doctoral Education in Social Work \(GADE\)
 - e. International Association of Schools of Social Work \(IASSW\)
 - f. National Association of Deans and Directors, Schools of Social Work \(NADD\)
 - g. National Teaching & Learning Forum (access at UT Austin Libraries)
 - h. Society for Social Work and Research

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. Please remember that the lesson plan and materials you will be using for your teaching experience assignment are due two weeks in advance of when they will be presented/available to students.
 2. Look ahead to next week’s readings and discussion board exercise.

Week 7, October 5: More teaching techniques; teaching for diversity, inclusion, and social justice; trauma-informed teaching

This week, Dr. Laura Rendón, Professor Emerita, University of Texas at San Antonio and author of Sentipensante, will be our guest speaker.

To prepare for this class session:

1. Be prepared to discuss favorite teaching techniques.
2. Read from the Davidson and Katapodis text Chapter 7 “Democratic and Antiracist Pedagogy.”
3. Read Chu, E. (2018). “The least we can do”: Gender affirming pedagogy starting on day one. (Chapter 9). In Ahad-Legardy, B., & Poon, O. A. (Eds.). Difficult subjects: Insights and strategies for teaching about race, sexuality, and gender (pp. 158-177). Sterling, VA: Stylus. The book is available electronically at the UT Libraries.
4. Review these handouts:
 - a. Carello, J., Principles of Trauma-Informed Teaching and Learning
 - b. Carello, J., & Butler, L. D., Some Principles and Practices to Enhance Classroom Emotional Safety

5. Read the tips from Middlebury College on teaching writing, teaching for diversity and social justice, and peer review practices. Scroll down.
6. Read Keith, T. (2019, November 22). Spark Effective Discussions with Canvas Discussion Boards.
7. Read Lerner, J. E., & Fulambarker, A. (2018). Beyond diversity and inclusion: Creating a social justice agenda in the classroom. Journal of Teaching in Social Work, 38(1), 43-53. See the Canvas course module for this week.
8. View the video Microaggressions in the Classroom (18.03 minutes):
9. Read instructions in the handout Discussion Board: Experiences of Diverse Students available in Week 6 module at the course Canvas site and respond based on your reading of Caplan, P. J., & Ford, J. C. (2014). The voices of diversity: What students of diverse races/ethnicities and both sexes tell us about their college experiences and their perceptions about their institutions' progress toward diversity. Aporia: The Nursing Journal, 6(3), 30-69.
 - a. Make your written or voice posts by Sunday, October 8 at midnight. Review your classmates' posts and respond to two of their posts by Tuesday, October 10, at midnight. Review all posts prior to our class on October 12.

Week 8, October 12: Meaningful and sometimes life-changing and difficult conversations; using the arts in teaching social work

To prepare for this class session:

1. Ensure that you have completed the Discussion Board exercise based on Caplan and Ford's article "The voices of diversity" and be prepared to discuss the exercise and the discussion board teaching approach in class.
2. Select and read two chapters (or more if you wish) from chapters 5-10 of the Adams et al. text, 4th ed. or chapters 6-15 of the 2nd ed. Be prepared to comment on 3 or 4 important points from each chapter you selected and bring to class two questions or a scenario you would pose to a class based on the chapter you selected to encourage a meaningful conversation/dialogue on the topics you have selected and ideas about how you would use them to conduct discussions or otherwise facilitate learning in foundation areas of the social work curriculum (social work values and ethics; research/statistics; policy; micro, mezzo, and macro practice; human behavior and the social environment).
3. Read the following short piece: Smith, D. (2015, June 18). The 8 R's of Talking about Race: How to Have Meaningful Conversations.
4. Read the poem "Weather" by Claudia Rankine at this University of Minnesota website. Then, listen to a commentary and Claudia Rankine reading her poem at KBOO: <https://direct.kboo.fm/media/84095-weather>. Reflect on the thoughts this poem raises for you and make note of them in preparation for our class discussion.
5. Peruse Mercurieff, I., & Roderick, L. (2013). Stop talking: Indigenous ways of teaching and learning and difficult dialogues in higher education. Anchorage: University of Alaska Anchorage; Landis, K (Ed.). Start talking: A handbook for engaging difficult dialogues in higher education. (2008). Anchorage: University of Alaska Anchorage & Alaska Pacific University.

Week 9, October 19: There is no formal class meeting this week. This time is devoted to (1) meeting with the instructor(s) in whose class(es) you will be teaching and planning for your teaching sessions and (2) earning a teaching certificate from the UT Austin Center for Teaching and Learning. I am also available to discuss assignments and course material and engage in other discussions about teaching and learning with you or just to chat.

Though we are not meeting as a group, please read:

Rendón course text: Chapter 5 "The Courage to Chart a Different Path," Chapter 6: "Sentipensante (Sensing/Thinking) Pedagogy"

Week 10, October 26: Making student assessment more meaningful (ungrading, rubrics, student self-assessment, peer assessment) and putting course evaluations in perspective

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following from the course texts:
 - a. Davidson and Katapodis text: Chapter 10 “Feedback that Really Works,” Chapter 11 “Grades—Ugh?”
 - b. Lovett et al.: Appendix E “What Are Rubrics and How Can We Use Them?”, Appendix F “What Are Learner Checklists and How Can We Use Them?”, Appendix I “What Are Reader Responses/Peer Reviews and How Can We Use Them?”, Appendix J “What Are Exam Wrappers and How Can We Use Them?”
 2. Think about the different types of assignments, tests, and other assessments used in the courses you have taken. Be prepared to share your thoughts about how valuable they were to your learning, which you might be most likely to use in your role as a teacher, and how you might modify them to be more useful in promoting students’ learning.
 3. Read the following brief articles (with links to original articles if you wish to read further):
 - a. Flaherty, C. (2016, January 11). Bias against female instructors. Inside Higher Education.
 - b. Sprague, J. (2016, June 17). The bias in student course evaluations. Inside Higher Education.

Week 11, November 2: Course planning and syllabus design, fostering community, classroom management, gatekeeping, academic integrity (artificial intelligence and the next wave), safety

This week Clinical Associate Professor Sarah Swords, Assistant Dean for Master’s Programs; Clinical Associate Professor Cossy Hough, former Assistant Dean for Undergraduate Programs; and Yolanda Padilla, Clara Pope Willoughby Centennial Professor in Child Welfare and Interim Associate Dean for Undergraduate Programs will share insights on teaching in master’s and undergraduate social work programs.

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read Pittman, C. (2018). Addressing incivility in the classroom (Chapter 3). In Ahad-Legardy, B., & Poon, O. A. (Eds.). Difficult subjects: Insights and strategies for teaching about race, sexuality, and gender (pp. 54-71). Sterling, VA: Stylus.
2. Read Urwin, C. A., Van Soest, D., & Kretzschmar, J. A. (2006). Key principles for developing gatekeeping standards for working with students with problems. Journal of Teaching in Social Work 26(1/2), 163-180. See course Canvas site.
3. Review information at the following websites:
 - a. Behavioral Concerns and COVID-19 Advice Line
 - b. General Information on Campus Carry
 - c. Title IX
4. Watch the video “10 Online Teaching Tips Beyond Zoom: Teaching Without Walls Episode 1” by Michael Wesch (10.28 minutes)
5. Review Darby, F. (2019, April 17). How to Be a Better Online Teacher: Advice Guide. Chronicle of Higher Education. See course Canvas site.
6. View examples of graphic syllabi (see course Canvas site), and also read Pacansky-Brock, M. (n.d.). Liquid syllabus: A humanizing element for online courses. As you begin reading, click on the link “Liquid Syllabus” to see Professor Pacansky-Brock’s History of Still Photo course syllabus. Be prepared to discuss your reactions to these forms of syllabi.
7. Read the following short article: Melo, N. (2023). Incorporating artificial intelligence into the classroom: An examination of benefits, challenges, and best practices. eLearning Industry.
8. The following readings are recommended:

- a. Collins, M. E., & Amodeo, M. (2005). Responding to plagiarism in schools of social work: Considerations and recommendations. Journal of Social Work Education, 41(3), 527-543. See course Canvas site.
- b. Farrel, D., Ray, K., Rich, T., Suarez, Z., Christenson, B., & Jennigs, L. (2018). A meta-analysis of approaches to engage social work students online. Journal of Teaching in Social Work, 38(2), 183-197. See course Canvas site.

Reminder of upcoming assignment due:

1. Teaching philosophy statement due by Week 13, November 16 (post your statement on our course Canvas site under Assignments).
2. Presentations of teaching experiences are scheduled for Week 13, November 16.

Week 12, November 9: Developing teaching philosophy and diversity, equity, and inclusion statements; academic freedom, responsibility, and integrity in teaching; teaching across the social work curriculum; teaching at different types of colleges/universities and the intersections of teaching, research, and service

This week a panel of faculty will discuss preparing for a career in teaching and their experiences teaching in different areas of the social work curriculum.

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following from the Davidson and Katapodis text: Chapter 12 "What Could Possibly Go Wrong?," Conclusion "Changing the World."
2. Consult resources at the Center for Teaching and Learning website on developing teaching philosophy statements and diversity, equity, and inclusion statements
3. Review examples of social work faculty members' teaching philosophy statements in the course Canvas module.
4. Review skeletal outline for writing a teaching philosophy statement in the course Canvas module.
5. Jot down three ethical principles you believe will be most important in guiding you in your role as a college/university teacher.
6. Read Calzada, E., & Hough, C. (2021, May 20). Commentary: To fear critical race theory underestimates, harms students. San Antonio Express.
7. To prepare for our faculty panel on teaching in different areas of the social work curriculum, peruse recent issues of the Journal of Social Work Education and Journal of Teaching in Social Work and identify two articles that address teaching in areas of the social work curriculum in which you are most interested. Be prepared to comment on their content in class.
8. Think about how we would like to celebrate teaching and all your hard work during our last class meeting.

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. Please post your teaching philosophy statement on Canvas under Assignments by November 16 and be prepared to discuss it in class on that day.
2. Presentations of your teaching experiences will also be made next week.

Week 13, November 16: Reflecting on teaching experiences, discussion of teaching philosophy and diversity, equity, and inclusion statements

To prepare for this class session:

1. Read the following from the Rendón text: Chapter 7 “Sustaining the Soul That Embraces a Different Truth,” Chapter 8 “When Sentipensante Pedagogy Meets the Theory and Praxis of Conocimiento.”
2. Be prepared to reflect on your teaching experience (e.g., what you think your strengths were, what might have surprised you about the experience, faculty and student feedback on your teaching, areas in which you would like to grow) and show about 5 minutes of your video recording illustrating your teaching.
3. By class time, post your teaching philosophy statement under Assignments at the course Canvas page and be prepared to spend 10-15 minutes discussing major points of your teaching philosophy statement including points about diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice. You will be asked to review your classmates’ teaching philosophy statements. No later than November 30, using Peer Review under Assignments, provide each of them some friendly feedback (e.g., something you particularly liked about their statement, suggestions for clarification or improvement). The instructor will provide feedback on your teaching philosophy statement by Nov. 24. Feel free to revise and resubmit if you wish.

Reminder of upcoming assignments due:

1. On our last class day, November 30, the following are due: (a) reflection paper on your teaching experience and copies of students’ feedback or a summary of student feedback on your teaching and (b) your certificate from the Center for Teaching and Learning (or, if you have not received your certificate by then, include the names and dates of the sessions you attended). If revisions to your teaching philosophy statement are requested or you wish to revise for additional feedback, also turn in the revision on the last class day.

Week 14, November 23: No class, Fall break, a time for reflection

People have different thoughts and feelings about Thursday of this week. Whether or not you chose to name this day and whether you observe it or not, I hope you will take at least a little time this week to refresh as we prepare for the end of the semester. There are no assigned readings for this week, but please see additional message at our course Canvas site for this week and please be sure to leave feedback on classmates’ teaching philosophy statement at the course Canvas site under assignments by November 30.

Week 15, November 30: Wrapping up the course, reflecting on the semester, and celebrating teaching and learning and your efforts to develop into the teacher you wish to become

To prepare for this class session:

1. In addition to completing the formal Course Evaluation, which I hope you will do, please feel free to share some constructive feedback about the course during our class session (e.g., what you thought was most helpful, suggestions for strengthening the course, etc.) or any other thoughts about teaching and learning.
2. Be sure you have left feedback on classmates’ teaching philosophy statements and be prepared to reflect on the peer review process as a teaching tool during class.
3. Celebrate teaching and all the work you did this semester to prepare yourself for teaching.
4. Submit your teaching reflection paper and student feedback, teaching certificate or list of Teaching Preparation Series sessions you attended, and any other remaining work that may be due such as a revised teaching philosophy statement.

IX. Course Evaluation

In addition to the official Course Evaluation that all students will be asked to complete at the end of the term, the instructor will request feedback from class members at various points during the term. Your input is also welcome at other times during the term to improve the course.

Attendance Sheet

Name _____

Your attendance and participation in each class session is important to our class's learning environment. The definition of attended a class session is that you were there for the entire session. Unless you were ill, had an (unforeseen) emergency, or had an approved absence, each absence results in 10 points subtracted from your final course grade. Two or more absences will generally result in a grade of F for the course or the need to withdraw from the course, depending on circumstances and UT Austin policy.

Week	Date	Attended (circle yes or no)		If you wish, you may state the reason for your absence.
1	Aug. 24	Yes	No
