I. Standardized Course Description

This course will focus on the incidence, etiology, and assessment of health and mental health issues with children, adolescents, adults, and families. The framework of the course is based on social work values and the ethical decision-making process, as illuminated by the NASW Code of Ethics. Students will learn models of assessment to evaluate human functioning throughout the lifecycle. A bio-psycho-social-spiritual and cultural emphasis will be applied to the diagnostic categories within the DSM5-TR. Students will develop an advanced understanding of people from diverse backgrounds, affirming, and respecting their strengths and differences. The course is built on the identification, analysis, and implementation of empirically-based assessment tools that have incorporated statistically valid reliability and validity studies. Major classification systems, such as Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders and the International Classification of Diseases, and other schemes for assessing and understanding human behavior, will be covered.

II. STANDARDIZED COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the semester, students should be able to:

1. Demonstrate an in-depth understanding of biological, psychosocial, and cultural theories on the etiology of mental health and mental illness;
2. Demonstrate the ability to apply methods of empirically-based assessment tools and techniques, including those developed through classificatory schemes, standardized measures, and qualitative typologies;
3. Demonstrate an advanced clinical knowledge of the relationship between assessment and intervention as it relates to the strengths, capacities and resources of individuals and families;
4. Demonstrate the ability to adapt assessment models to reflect an understanding, of persons from diverse backgrounds, including (but not limited to) race, ethnicity, culture, class, gender, sexual orientation, religion, physical or mental ability, age, and national origin;
5. Critically evaluate and analyze different theoretical and assessment models as to their efficacy in given situations. This includes: a) the adequacy of the research and knowledge base; b) the range of applicability; c) the value and ethical issues, including the student’s own value system, and d) the policy implications involved in assessment and delivery of services;
6. Demonstrate an understanding of the limitations in using classification schemes in understanding human behavior and the danger of mislabeling people, particularly those from at-risk populations. Demonstrate advanced knowledge of social work values and the ethical decision-making processes as they relate to ethical dilemmas in clinical assessment and practice.

III. TEACHING METHODS

This course is designed to include a variety of teaching methodologies to achieve the expectation of student mastery of the skills involved in the examination of social work practice as it is supported by selected scientific findings. Readings, discussion, lecture, experiential exercise, videos, role plays, case examples, and presentations are designed to enhance the learning experience.

IV. REQUIRED TEXTS AND MATERIALS

Required and Optional Texts/Materials

V. COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Policy on attendance, participation, and due dates for assignments

Students are expected to attend class regularly and to participate in the class discussions by contributing meaningful questions and discourse with fellow students and the instructor. Readings are expected to be completed prior to class. Role will be taken; leaving class will be considered an unexcused absence unless arrangements have been made with the instructor for the absence to be the excused. Points will be deducted from the final grade for unexcused absences. The student is allowed one unexcused absence without penalty. Students will not be permitted to make up work missed during unexcused absences. Late assignments will not be accepted without penalty; some exceptions may be made by the instructor. Failure to attend class regularly and demonstrate through class discussion that one has read the assigned material will be considered in assigning the final grade.

Course Assignments

The assignments include the following:

Notes on reading assignments; a group panel presentation which includes a handout for classmates (summary of important points from assigned clinical articles and from the texts, emphasizing differential diagnostic issues + review sample LMSW test questions) including a discussion of clinical issues from film clips to illustrate important points from the assigned material including a one-page reaction paper; and a 3-5-page critique addressing assessment issues for the role play clinical interviews and 2 papers.

Panel Presentation(group) {20% of final grade}
The class will be led in a discussion of clinical material illustrated by clips from films such as WHAT’S EATING GILBERT GRAPE; LIKE WATER FOR CHOCOLATE, TAXI DRIVER, FATAL ATTRACTION, AS GOOD AS IT GETS, GIRL INTERRUPTED & SYBIL and possibly other films. Each student or group will lead a discussion on some of the film material as they illustrate certain technical material from the texts and other assigned material. The instructor will participate, as well. The expectation is for all class members to watch the film under study before the discussion in class. The presenter(s) will guide us in attending to selected scenes that illustrate the technical material to be discussed.

The role play will be of a character or characters from the films that illustrate the assessment process of the clinical unit of attention, such as an individual or family. The role play(s) will be conducted by a professional Clinical Social Worker; students may volunteer to conduct the interview if they wish, but this is not a requirement. Students will view the film clips with differential diagnostic questions in mind and share with the class during discussions. The class discussions will be treated as if they are a clinical staffing in a clinical setting.

Each panel (or presenter) will summarize briefly the clinical points in material assigned to their particular film example (1%). Each classmate and the instructor will be provided with a copy of the summaries via email before the class. The purpose of the summary is to provide an outline for the discussion. The panel is expected to have mastered those points in order to integrate the material in a class discussion. Note: the assigned material from the DSM-5-TR should not be outlined in detail; further instructions will be provided on the first-class day. All students except the presenters will submit brief notes on assigned readings to the instructor by the end of the week of the presentation.

The group presentation should include the following:

Examples from movie illustrating (provide hand-out for class with this information)

- 10 defenses (5%)
- examples of 1 ethical dilemmas, as defined by NASW Code of Ethics; quote the ethical standard (5%)
- 2 LMSW test questions relevant to the diagnostic process for the issues in the film (.5%)
- in the assigned film material, identify ways the factors of age, class, culture, race, ethnicity, country of origin, language(s), educational attainment, religious background, sexual orientation, clinician value conflict and/or physical ability may influence (limit, compromise, or enhance) the clinical diagnostic effort and the diagnosis (4%)
- the effect of trauma and economic/social oppression on the diagnostic process and on the diagnosis (2%)
- a brief example of a research question generated by the effort to diagnosis a film figure (.5%)
- psychometric measurement tool (1%) (each panel will discuss with instructor)
- legal issues that might arise (1%)
- differential diagnosis issues (1%)
- strengths of client or client system (1%)

One-page reaction paper 2(%)
the reaction paper is intended to reflect the student’s educational experience of his/her /their own panel presentation: The reaction paper should address the student’s experience of applying the diagnostic process to a person(s); a value, clinical, and ethical dilemma of the student’s toward the diagnostic interview role play {re: the ethical concern, cite the ethical standard from Code of Ethics}; and an emotional experience had by the student regarding the prospect of diagnosing and/or interviewing the “client” in question and a defense mechanism which the student might likely erect to cope with that emotional reaction. Reaction paper is due next class day following the role play. In the summer, the due date is one week from role play. Each student will write only one reaction paper.

Papers

Format for Papers: choose 2 references from the Reference List at end of this syllabus and/or on Canvas to support some answers to the following questions; use hand-outs on Mental Status Exam & defense mechanisms located in Canvas file.

For all 3 papers, the role play experience, the film, class discussion(s), assigned readings, and interview provide the clinical data. Additionally, for Senora Pires-Fernandes paper, the case transcript is a source of information (located on syllabus and Canvas).

Format for all 3 papers:

- a brief discussion of the assessment of the client system(s) with a sample of the client’s interpersonal behavior and emotional processes that can either support or qualify inferences from the history and examination (make an inference) (4%)
- the following information from a mental status examination: ways the client(s) minimize(s) or exaggerate(s) certain aspects of the client(s) history, particular topics/questions that evoke hesitation or signs of discomfort, and the general style of relating (2%)
- client’s ability to communicate about emotional issues with sample of behavior illustrating that ability (or compromised ability) (2%)
- example of 1 defense mechanism typical of this “client’s” diagnosis including examples of the following: the coping style, the function, inferred cognition, and the diagnostic language (make a chart) (3%) (note: these categories are found in Canvas files as hand-out on defense mechanisms)
- 4 examples from the clinical interview that contained 4 of elements of a mental status exam (3%)
- An error made by the clinician with the correction from the assigned literature (.5%)
- An example of your personal reaction to the interview including a value conflict, a clinical concern, a counter-transference reaction, and an ethical concern (quote the ethical standard from NASW Code of Ethics) (.5%).
- speculate on the part of the brain which may be compromised by one of the symptoms/criteria exhibited (Preston, et al.) & speculate on a class of medications which might address one of the symptoms/criteria and briefly discuss of those being diagnosed; give the page number(s) from Preston, et al. (2 %) possible diagnose(s) of Sra. Pires-Fernandez, including V-T-Z Codes; give criteria met with examples; mention the possible effect of the mother’s mental health status on clinical judgment of social worker in diagnosing the client; list two strengths and two weaknesses of the assessment interview (1%)

suggest a theoretical approach to address any symptom of daughter, stating why you make that choice & consider medication & rationale for medication for the daughter’s symptoms (1%)

mention cultural factors affecting the diagnostic process with references (1.5%)

list criteria met with examples; list specifiers, if relevant; list possible V-T-Z Codes with examples (7%) differential diagnosis issues (2%).

Case for Paper #1
Family Center of Eagle Pass, A United Way Agency

(draft of report to be presented at staffing and case consultation)

Staff: Clara Benevides, LCSW
Client: Senora Elena Pires Fernandez
Referral Sources: John Ruiz, MD and Josephina Vargas, LCSW

Identifying Information and Referral Information
The client, Senora Pires Fernandez, was initially referred or “invited” in her words, to participate in a family assessment precipitated by the case of “nervios” of her daughter, Tita who is 30 years old.

After a consultation with Ramon DeRosario, LCSW, over treatment recommendations for Senorita Tita Pires, Dr. John Ruiz, the family physician, recommended that all family members be evaluated to determine whether the family system had influence on the origins of Tita Pires’ symptoms and possibly could be a source of strength toward the improvement of her emotional well-being. To this end the individual family members were evaluated with a family consultation/assessment scheduled after all evaluations were completed and staffed at the Family Center.(For the sake of clarity, the family members will be referred to by their first names for the remainder of this report.)

Serina Quintero, LCSW, had previously evaluated Tita’s sister and brother-in-law, Rosaura and Pedro Soldado. Tita’s other sister, Gertrudes Pires, was “a disgrace to the family and we do not speak of her,” according to Senora Pires Fernandez. According to Ms. del Canto, Gertrudes was reputed to have become a prostitute (according to Rosaura) or to have fallen in love with a wild, exciting drug dealer (according to Tita).
Although Tita currently is in Eagle Pass (recovering from shock from death of infant nephew) at the home of an aunt, Tita is reluctant to return to Mexico and resume living on her mother’s ranch. Her sister, Gertrudis, is estranged from the family, having run away with a man. Living on the ranch are Rosaura and her husband. Tita’s emotional problems seemed in response to the death of Rosaura and Pedros’ baby, Roberto, who died when the couple had just moved to San Antonio, Texas. Additionally, there seems to have been some sort of relationship between Tita and Pedro prior to his marriage to Rosaura, but the details are vague.

History and Assessment of Client

Senora Pires Fernandez is a 57 year old citizen of Mexico whose husband died of a sudden heart attack a few days after Tita was born (30 years ago). She took over the operation of their large cattle and sheep ranch in Northern Mexico with the help of servants from the nearby village and men whose families had lived on the ranch for generations.

The client appeared for the interview formally dressed as if for church, with a large hat for shading the sun. She seemed fit and healthy in appearance, though somewhat reserved in demeanor. She began the interview by stating firmly that she hoped that the Spanish of the interviewer (speaking about me in the third person) was adequate because, though she spoke perfect English, she preferred Spanish.

Though the client was reluctant to discuss her own family of origin in much detail, the following information was related about her past. She is the eldest of six girls from Mexico City. Her father, a famous art dealer, decided that she would marry at the age of 20 to a man who was considerably older who was a successful landowner. Her two younger sisters were already engaged. She alluded to the fact that she was surprised that her father made that decision. She was happy in Mexico City attending the art institute and socializing with many friends.

She said, “At the time, Papa announced at Sunday evening dinner that I would be leaving my studies and marrying Senor Pires. I will never forget my mother’s face; she turned white and tears fell out of her eyes. Papa scolded her right there in front of all of us, including Father Tomas. I would not humiliate my father by such a display. I was a bit shocked, though, as my mother had always told me that Papa intended for me and whoever I married to run his business….eventually. Anyway, I was glad to get away from frivolous friends, especially one man who believed himself to be my suitor. Perhaps, Papa was right..”

At this point in the interview, she stopped talking freely and abruptly asked what I was ”scribbling” on my notepad. I turned my notes to her so she could see that I was quoting her describing her life. She shrugged and sat back in her chair, resuming her more formal manner, in contrast to her almost reverie when describing her father’s decision for her to marry.

She said that was enough about her. She had a wonderful family, all sisters were married with excellently behaved children, except, of course, for her younger sister who took care of her parents until their deaths. At that point, that sister married an art dealer and now helps her artist husband run their father’s business in Mexico City. She directed the interviewer to discuss her daughter, Tita.
“You should ask me questions about my daughter, who had behaved like a lunatic recently. And now she won’t come home where she belongs. After all, she has a serious responsibility to take care of me in my older age, though I have certainly not reached an older age at this point. I hope that she can manage to be sensible, however. Once, she had the absurd idea that she would marry. And her being the youngest daughter!”

The client seemed truly shocked and even outraged at the idea that Tita would want to marry instead of care for her mother in her older age.

”What is wrong with the girl? I am asking all of the doctors and social workers, and no one seems to have any answers. I sometimes wonder if any of you paid attention in school? I can tell you all you need to know. Thanks to God that some one of you finally had the sense to ask me for advice. Anyway, she has always been slow and stupid even, burning things she irons, cooking ridiculous food in the kitchen with the dim-witted servant girls, and being sly.”

When asked what she meant by ‘sly” she hesitated, and then spoke very rapid Spanish, saying that Tita had the idea that she was entitled to marry Pedro. She then stopped talking abruptly, for the second time.

I then asked her to explain, as I was confused because I had thought Pedro was Rosaura’s husband. Not responding directly, Senora Pires Fernandez said emphatically that she thought that Tita’s just had a case of “nervios” from being influenced by the servants. They all seemed to indulge themselves in headaches, crying, something always wrong with their body, walking around at night and poor sleep.

The client was asked again to clarify about Tita marrying Pedro.

The client finally said that originally Tita had planned on marrying Pedro, who was now married to Rosaura, but that (marrying at all) was not allowed. Tita was, after all the youngest daughter, and she knew quite well that she was not to marry anyone.

“Anyway, Rosaura was already old at age 21 and it was past time for marriage responsibilities, so I made the decision that was mine to make, to be sure, “ which was that Rosaura was available for marriage to Pedro, but not Tita.

At this point in the interview, the client seemed to take on a challenging attitude toward me. For much of the session, the client seemed to keep trying to take control of the line of questioning and of the subject, which I allowed in order to obtain as much information as possible.

As the interview was concluding, the client remarked, “I certainly hope that you can read your own writing so the facts will be accurate. The others that have been interviewed leave a great deal to be desired in their ability to tell the truth. I can’t imagine what lies they may have told all of you about our family. Especially Tita. Who but me would tell you that her sly ways were the reason that I sent her sister to Texas, her sneaking around all of the time with that weak-spined son-in-law of mine. I was exhausted from having to watch what they were doing together. And with her sister’s husband. And then, God rest his soul, Roberto’s dying like that.”

When the I tried to comment that I was sorry for the loss of her grandchild, the client looked away out of the window and said calmly and matter-of-factly, “ Well, I am sure that the baby is in Heaven with Jesus.” Senora Pires Fernandez quickly grabbed her hat and handbag and left the room.

Note: The interviewer did conduct most of the interview in Spanish though the client lapsed into English once when describing the ranch business and another time, when she seemed quite emotional (sad and, yet, somewhat nostalgic with some resentment) when discussing her hopes to work in the art world earlier in her life. Once, when the client became really excited and spoke rapidly, the interviewer had a difficult time understanding everything that she said, but decided that the client might think it rude to interrupt her for clarification.

The interviewer was unable to ask for information on several issues, such as how Senora Pires Fernandez felt about Tita returning to the ranch, what her relationship was like with Tita, or how she was feeling about the series of crises that her family had recently experienced. However, in consultation with the agency supervisor, a tentative differential diagnosis will be made for the client and reported to the referring clinicians. There needs to be an additional effort to address the above issues, as they bear directly upon an appropriate recommendation for Tita Pires Fernandez’ place of residence.

For Paper #2 on Gilbert Grape film: Same format plus possible diagnoses of client & younger son, including T-Z Codes; give criteria met with examples; mention the possible effect of the younger son’s mental health status on clinical judgment of social worker in diagnosing the client; differential diagnosis issue(s) and suggest medication for on symptom for mother and child and rationale for medication (13%)

For Role Play paper (each student only writes one of these): diagnose film character of role play interview. Possible diagnoses of client, including T-Z Codes; give criteria met with examples; differential diagnosis issue(s); suggest medication and rationale for one symptom {each section worth ½ of points of other 2 papers: 15% total points}

For assigned reading summaries: for each presentation under “All Read”, choose 5 points important to your learning from the material and send via email by Saturday noon of week assigned. When you are on presentation panel, you do not do this assignment.

VII. CLASS POLICIES

Policy on attendance, participation, and due dates for assignments.

Students are expected to attend class regularly and to participate in the class discussions by contributing meaningful questions and discourse with fellow students and the instructor.

Readings are expected to be completed prior to class. Role will be taken; leaving class at the break will be considered an unexcused absence unless arrangements have been made with the instructor for the absence to be the excused. Points will be deducted from the final grade for unexcused absences. The student is allowed one unexcused absence without penalty. Students will not be permitted to make up work missed during unexcused absences. Late assignments will not be accepted without penalty; some exceptions may be made by the instructor. Failure to attend class regularly and demonstrate through class discussion that one has read the assigned material will be considered in assigning the final grade. Use of a laptop computer should only pertain to class and not personal matters/interests.

VIII. UNIVERSITY POLICIES

Attendance and Academic Behavior. At the University of Texas at Austin, regular attendance at all class meetings is expected. Instructors are responsible for implementing an attendance policy and must notify students of any special attendance requirements. See more information at https://catalog.utexas.edu/general-information/academic-policies-and-procedures/attendance/.

Furthermore, students are expected to abide by the Standards for Social Work Education (available at https://socialwork.utexas.edu/student-resources/bsw/policies-and-procedures/). The student shows potential for responsible and accountable behavior by being punctual and dependable, prioritizing responsibilities, attending class regularly, observing deadlines, completing assignments on time, and keeping appointments or making appropriate arrangements.

Religious Holy Days. A student who misses classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day should inform the instructor as far in advance of the absence as possible so that arrangements can be made to complete an assignment within a reasonable period after the absence. A reasonable accommodation does not include substantial modification to academic standards, or adjustments of requirements essential to any program of instruction. Students and instructors who have questions or concerns about academic accommodations for religious observance or religious beliefs may contact the Center for Access and Restorative Engagement at https://community.utexas.edu/care/. The University does not maintain a list of religious holy days.

The University of Texas Honor Code. The core values of The University of Texas at Austin are learning, discovery, freedom, leadership, individual opportunity, and responsibility. Each member of the university is expected to uphold these values through integrity, honesty, trust, fairness, and respect toward peers and community.

Policy on Academic Integrity. Students who violate University rules on academic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary penalties, including the possibility of failure in the course and / or dismissal from the University. Since such dishonesty harms the individual, all students, and the integrity of the University, policies on academic dishonesty will be strictly enforced. For further information, please visit the Student Conduct and Academic Integrity website at: http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/conduct.

Use of Course Materials. The materials used in this course, including, but not limited to exams, quizzes, and homework assignments, are copyright protected works. Any unauthorized duplication of the course materials is a violation of federal law and may result in disciplinary action being taken against the student. Additionally, the sharing of course materials without the specific, express approval of the professor may be a violation of the University’s Student Honor Code and an act of academic dishonesty, which could result in further disciplinary action. This sharing includes, among other things, uploading class materials to websites for the purpose of distributing those materials to other current or future students.

University Electronic Mail Student Notification. Electronic mail (email), like postal mail, is a mechanism for official University communication to students. The University will exercise the right to send email communications to all students, and the University will expect that email communications will be received and read in a timely manner. Students can find UT Austin’s policies and instructions for updating their e-mail address at https://it.utexas.edu/policies/university-electronic-mail-student-notification-policy.

Steve Hicks School of Social Work Policies

Professional Conduct and Civility in the Classroom. The professor expects students to act as professionals in class. This means students should arrive on time for class, be prepared to participate in the class discussion, and show respect for one another’s opinions. A course brings together a group of diverse individuals with various backgrounds. Students are influenced and shaped by such factors as race, ethnicity, gender, sex, physical abilities, religious and political beliefs, national origins, and sexual orientations, among others. We expect to learn from each other in an atmosphere of positive engagement and mutual respect. This atmosphere includes working intentionally to recognize and dismantle racism, sexism, heterosexism, and ableism in the classroom. Social Work also deals with complex and controversial issues. These issues may be challenging and uncomfortable, and it would be impossible to offer a substantive classroom experience that did not include potentially difficult conversations relating to challenging issues. In this environment, we will be exposed to diverse ideas and opinions, and sometimes we will not agree with the ideas expressed by others. Nevertheless, the professor requires that students engage one another with civility, respect, and professionalism.
Classroom Confidentiality. Information shared in class about agencies, clients, and personal matters is considered confidential per the NASW Code of Ethics on educational supervision and is protected by regulations of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) as well. As such, sharing this information with individuals outside of the educational context is not permitted. Violations of confidentiality could result in actions taken according to the policies and procedure for review of academic performance located in sections 3.0, 3.1, and 3.2 of the Standards for Social Work Education.

Unanticipated Distress. Students may experience unexpected and/or distressing reactions to course readings, videos, conversations, and assignments. If so, students are encouraged to inform the professor. The professor can be responsive and supportive regarding students’ participation in course assignments and activities, but students are responsible for communicating clearly what kind of support is desired. If counseling is needed, students may contact a service provider of their choosing, including the UT Counseling and Mental Health Center at 512-471-3515 or online at https://cmhc.utexas.edu/.

Policy on Social Media and Professional Communication. Public social networks are not private. Even when open only to approved or invited members, users cannot be certain that privacy will exist among the general membership of sites. If social work students choose to participate in such forums, please assume that anything posted can be seen, read, and critiqued. What is said, posted, linked to, commented on, uploaded, subscribed to, etc., can be accessed and archived, posing potential harm to professional reputations and prospective careers.

Social work students who use social media (e.g. Facebook, Twitter, Instagram) and other forms of electronic communication (e.g. blogs) must be mindful of how their communication may be perceived by clients, colleagues, faculty, and others. Social work students are expected to make every effort to minimize material which could be considered inappropriate for a professional social worker in training. Because of this, social work students are advised to manage security settings at their most private levels and avoid posting information/photos or using any language that could jeopardize their professional image.

Students are asked to consider the amount of personal information posted on these sites and are obliged to block any client access to involvement in the students’ social networks. Client material should not be referred to in any form of electronic media, including any information that might lead to the identification of a client or compromise client confidentiality in any way. Additionally, students must critically evaluate any material that is posted regarding community agencies and professional relationships, as certain material could violate the standards set by the School of Social Work, the Texas Code of Conduct for Social Workers, and/or the NASW Code of Ethics.

Social work students should consider that they will be representing professional social work practice as well as The University of Texas at Austin School of Social Work program while in the classroom, the university community, and the broader area communities.

Resources, Prevention of Discrimination, and Safety

Disability Accommodation Statement. If you are a student with a disability, or think you may have a disability, and need accommodations please contact Disability and Access (D&A). You may refer to D&A’s website for contact and more information: https://community.utexas.edu/disability/. If you are already registered with D&A, please deliver your Accommodation Letter to me as early as possible in the semester so we can discuss your approved accommodations and how they apply in my class.

Behavior Concerns and Covid-19 Advice Line (BCCAL). If students have concerns about their behavioral health, or if they are concerned about the behavioral health of someone else, students may use the Behavior Concerns and COVID-19 Advice Line to discuss by phone their concerns. This service is provided through a partnership between the Office of the Dean of Students, the Counseling and Mental Health Center (CMHC), the Employee Assistance Program (EAP), and The University of Texas Police Department (UTPD). Call 512-232-5050 or visit https://safety.utexas.edu/behavior-concerns-advice-line. The Behavior Concerns and COVID-19 Advice Line has been expanded to support The University of Texas at Austin community during the COVID-19 pandemic. By calling 512-232-5050 - Option 2 for COVID-19, students, faculty and staff can be assisted in English and Spanish with COVID-19 support.

Covid-19 Related Information. The University’s policies and practices related to the pandemic may be accessed at: https://protect.utexas.edu/

Title IX Reporting. In accordance with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the University of Texas at Austin is committed to maintaining a learning environment that is free from discriminatory conduct on the basis of sex https://titleix.utexas.edu/. Faculty, field instructors, staff, and/or teaching assistants in their supervisory roles are mandated reporters of incidents of sex discrimination, sexual harassment, sexual violence, stalking, dating violence, or any other forms of sexual misconduct. Students who report such incidents will be informed of University resources. Incidents will be reported to the University’s Title IX Coordinator. Further information, including student resources related to Title IX, may also be found at https://titleix.utexas.edu/.

Title IX Accommodations for Those Pregnant, Nursing and Parenting. Pregnant, nursing and parenting students, faculty, and staff are eligible for accommodations through the Title IX Office that support equal access to education and work and prevent discrimination. Students may reach out to the Title IX Office for help with accommodations to make up missed classes, complete missed coursework, keep them safe in the classroom, apply for leaves of absence, receive priority registration and other related support. Faculty and staff, including undergraduate students who work on campus and graduate student employees, may reach out for assistance with job or schedule restructuring and obtaining modified or additional work equipment. Visit the Title IX pregnancy and parenting resource page for more information or contact the Title IX Support and Resources team connect with a Case Manager.

Campus Carry Policy. The University’s policy on campus carry may be found here: https://campuscarry.utexas.edu.

Safety. As part of professional social work education, students may have assignments that involve working in agency settings and/or the community. As such, these assignments may present some risks. Sound choices and caution may lower risks inherent to the profession. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of and adhere to policies and practices related to agency and/or community safety. Students should notify the professor regarding any safety concerns.
Emergency Evacuation Policy. Occupants of buildings on the UT Austin campus are required to evacuate and assemble outside when a fire alarm is activated or an announcement is made. Please be aware of the following policies regarding evacuation:

- Familiarize yourself with all exit doors in the classroom and the building. Remember that the nearest exit door may not be the one you used when entering the building.
- If you require assistance to evacuate, inform the professor in writing during the first week of class.
- In the event of an evacuation, follow the professor’s instructions.
- Do not re-enter a building unless you are given instructions by the Austin Fire Department, the UT Austin Police Department, or the Fire Prevention Services office.
